

It is estimated (there are too many forms of open source to accurately measure) that today more than 60% of companies and governments worldwide use some form of open source software, either as a known resource or as a resource embedded in other applications, many of which are vendor supplied.

Rewaa have the internal IT expertise to fine-tune and customize the open source software to interact with commercial BI software as well as underlying data sources and applications. Such expertise is becoming a rare commodity, said director of Rewaa technologies.

"Open source reporting delivers value just at the time when the budget is exhausted and your project most needs to impress your users,"It is estimated (there are too many forms of open source to accurately measure) that today more than 60% of companies and governments worldwide use some form of open source software, either as a known resource or as a resource embedded in other applications, many of which are vendor supplied.